Liberating Economics

Feminist Perspectives on Families, Work, and Globalization

Drucilla K. Barker and Susan F. Feiner

2005, ca 208 pages, 10 tables, 7 illustrations cloth 0-472-09843-8 $65.00

paper 0-472-06843-1 $24.95

“Feminism teaches us to think of the person in context: family, social and global. The atomism beloved of economics from the man’s perspective melts away when you do that—and it’s about time, too.”

— James Galbraith, LBJ School of Public Affairs, University of Texas at Austin

Liberating Economics draws on central concepts from women’s studies scholarship to construct a feminist understanding of the economic roles of families, caring labor, motherhood, paid and unpaid labor, poverty, the feminization of labor, and the consequences of globalization. Barker and Feiner consistently recognize the importance of social location—gender, race, class, sexual identity, and nationality—in economic processes shaping the home, paid employment, market relations, and the global economy. Throughout they connect women’s economic status in the industrialized nations to the economic circumstances surrounding women in the global South.

Rooted in the two disciplines, this book draws on the rich tradition of interdisciplinary work in feminist social science scholarship to construct a parallel between the notions that “the personal is political” and “the personal is economic.”

Contents

List of Figures
List of Tables
Preface

1. “Economics,” She Wrote
2. Family Matters: Reproducing the Gender Division of Labor
3. Love’s Labors—Care’s Costs
4. Women, Work, and National Policies
5. Women and Poverty in the Industrialized Countries
6. Globalization is a Feminist Issue
7. Dickens Redux: Globalization and the Informal Economy
8. The Liberated Economy

Notes
Selected Bibliography
Index

to request an examination copy for course use go to www.press.umich.edu

“The book is a must-read for every future economist, undergraduate and graduate, and for every women’s studies student.
It is a great read for the rest of us. It should be required reading for every policy-maker at the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the World Trade Organization.”

— Sandra Harding, Graduate School of Education and Information Studies UCLA

The University of Michigan Press

c/o Chicago Distribution Center
11030 South Langley Avenue
Chicago, IL 60628
Phone 800.621.2736/FAX 800.621.8476

Available DECEMBER
ORDER NOW at a 20% discount
MENTION DISCOUNT CODE: UMP06843
by phone 800.621.2736
on the web www.press.umich.edu to receive the discount on the web, type the discount code in the special instructions field of the shopping cart. The discount will be applied when your card is billed.